

INDEX OF FUNDING RESOURCES

NOTE: Some federal and private grant listings in this document may have expired deadlines. We continue to include these listings because the funding resource is highly likely to be re-opened for grant competition in future years. Along with the descriptive information provided, the funding opportunity listed contains both contact information and links that may assist you in your research. From a grant writing perspective, it may take almost a year to prepare, submit, and receive a response from the funding source. Therefore, reviewing both expired grants and awarded grants may be helpful in preparing for future funding applications. For more information on grant writing strategies, view our Successful Grant Writing Strategies document available on our website.

Unfortunately strategies that quickly raise test scores from "poor" to "fair" may not give students the education they need to fully achieve the standards. For example, an intense focus on basic discrete reading skills may not help students understand and apply ideas from what they read. Similarly, in math, a narrow focus on computational skills may not lead to students who can think mathematically and solve complex problems.
